I'm a lucky girl
I've got lots of friends to keep me company
When I need them around
They know my number and they call on me
So I just didn't miss you at all
At night when you should have called
I was really having a ball

Never knew much about you
Hadn't had that much effect on me
I was happy alone
I used to think so independently
So when you stopped coming around
Instead of going underground
I really hit the town

I had a party
I thought for a while I was getting over you
It shows just how wrong I could be

I've made a point of never thinking back on the past at all
I figured out that wishes have never changed the world before

So my time was sown up tight
For years I thought I had it right
But you changed my ideas overnight
'cos I thought for a while I was getting over you
It shows just how wrong I could be

To think that I could fool myself
Into thinking I didn't care
And now I see reflections of you everywhere
Still a lucky girl is bound to lose out every now and then I'd know what to do if I could only have that chance again
I know I couldn't make you wait
And I wouldn't make the same mistake
I just hope that it's not too late
'cos I thought for a while I was getting over you
It shows just how wrong I could be

Yes I thought for a while I was getting over you
It shows just how wrong I could be
