We'll paint a dead picture of red's and blues mixed with an orange skyline. The paint starts to crack and leaves a beautiful shade of black. A song plays loud but nobodies in time, with the racing heart of dynamite, valentine.

On your knees take a seat and enjoy the ride. We'll end it in a crash. One step and we'll call it suicide. Point a gun at the one you love, it's so typical of you to forget your own beliefs, and never take it back.

Light the skies with fire tonight, black it out with headlights.

Take this time to kiss yourself goodbye.

A sea of kerosene, let the sparks fly and it's over who are you to care

The bridge once crossed has now gone down in flames.

Drown yourself before you burn, this time you wont take the blame.
