I was shorebound within seas glare
On blue coat-tails twirling spent.

Blistered foray spits in my eyes
I'll slough this drought of life.
Sink wrecked weak.

About potent turns of thunder
Lightening dagger's up

A thrill now my heart pumps
Matching tideflow turning.
I'll jump and splash and jump and crash

And I wanted to she'd my skin
Into the ocean's suck.
Twisted mountain men
Flowing aspray

And I wanted to she'd my fear
Into the ocean's suck.
Twisted mountain men
Flowing aspray

I was seadrunk under seaspell.
Listen, the swell of the surf

Shameless surging deeper urging Deeper and deeper still
Still shunned ocean engulf me.

Under seachange like a diver
Snake-dancing spouting free
There's no memory of before me

Grinning water winks
The ocean sand
Beach burned nausea.
