Through a fortunate turn of events this original transcription has been acquired of a dissertation given by the late Professor Charles Pamplemousse R.C.B. at the Eighteenth Assembly of the "Heirs of the Politzanian Empire." Professor Pamplemousse was a distinguished anthropologist of his time whom many believed to be the world's leading authority on the subject of extinct civilizations. The program concludes with the singing of "The Politzanian National Anthem.")

As facts are few and far between
Hypothesis defies all logic
As to what precisely led to her demise
For what appears sheer grandiosity
No legacy remains
Except her crumbling ruins
On which these words were found engraved
Politzania! Politzania!
Long live Politzania!
Politzania! Politzania!
God save Politzania!
Now, these ancient Politzanians
As far as archeologists have traced
Had most thoroughly convinced themselves
They were a superior race
Quite a ridiculous notion, granted
However if we assume her sister rivals
Rose to quell such monstrous claims
I most humbly submit her unpleasant end
Is satisfactorily explained
Politzania! Politzania!
Long live Politzania!
Politzania! Politzania!
God save Politzania!
Those citizens who questioned
Those suspect harbourers of doubt
We brought before a panel
Of the Ministry of Health
They were tested and encephalogrammed
Till rendered quite insane
When in accordance with the laws

They reprocessed their brain
-("The Politzanian National Anthem")-
Politzania, brave, strong and true
Politzania we all love you
We'll smite our foes for we are right
And God is on our side
Politzania, red, white and green
Politzania reigning supreme
Victors in war, champions of peace
Unto Eternity
We're the Masters of the World
