"Save Me"

If you don't know, if you have found what you are lookin' for
The silver-lining always starts to fade
And what you don't know is that you don't know the truth anymore
Now you try sleeping in the bed you have made

The feelin' is gone and the circle is broken
Like water under a burnin' bridge
A million words but nothing is spoken
A deafening silence replaced by fear

Save me, I can't find my way home
The grace I've fallen from
The only truth I've ever known

So when you tell me what you tell me, I can't take it anymore
The same old story goes around and around
You think that if you speak a little louder than you did before
The point you make might somehow stick around

If empathy is no more than a token
I cry a river in the pourin' rain
The princess still sleeps but she will be woken
Her kiss of love is killin' me

Save me, I can't find my way home
The ground I'm walkin' on
The only friend I've ever known

Mother, Father, the battle I fight is for no one, no one but myself
Brother, Sister, the devil inside is my own now There's no way you could understand, you don't understand
You don't understand, you don't understand

Save me, I can't find my way home, save me
Save me, I can't find my way home, save me

Mother, Father, the tears that you cry are for no one
No one but yourself
Brother, Sister, I travel this road on my own now
There's no way you could understand

Save me, I can't find my way home
The grace I've fallen from
The only truth I've ever known

Save me, I can't find my way home
The ground I'm walkin' on
The only friend I've ever known
