There was a time when I knew that love was all that I had.

It takes a lot to prove that I've gotten over all of the things that I thought that I knew.

They are left here and broken

So much for all of these lies and let me tell you something

This love won't do, because it can't control me.

Can we go back to where we started, where we began?
All along I fought to win this battle of two lost soldiers who caved in and folded, whose names will be left unspoken

So much for all of these lies and let me tell you
something,

This love won't do, because it can't control me.

And to all your goddamn lies, just let me tell you
something,

This love won't do, because you can't control me.

So much for all of these lies and let me tell you
something,

This love won't do, because it can't control me.

And to all your goddamn lies, just let me tell you
something

This love won't do, because you can't control me
