The sun is setting in your life and I can't understand just why you couldn't tell me this before and now I'm left with something more than petty worries for my friend. His sadness never seems to end. When I think of all the times I couldn't fall asleep at night I wonder what it's gonna take and what's the choice you're gonna make and will we see you better? Will this last forever? Show me that you can make it. Sometimes it's hard to take it. It comes together in the end. You're telling me it's not easy, then tell me why you can't just try to open up your eyes and take a look outside. Now I'm left here by myself knowing that you need my help. Where have you been the past two days? I can just hope that you're okay. I know you're there. You know I care.
