Walkin' down these city blocks
I might as well be creeping down an aisle of egg shells
Juming every single time
My cruel imagination sees a ghost of you

Wrinkles runnin' down my clothes
There's no one to impress, why try to look my best
Shaving has become a chore
When most weeknights are nothing but a bore

So get outta my head, I'm sayin'
Get outta my mind
All this in vain when you are all I'm trying to find

Tell me is it natural that no one is as beautiful
When you were never mine, and I was never yours
Sorry that it's awkward, I'm always walking backwards
To the times we had, when I meant nothing more

Sitting at this restaurant
I'm trying to recall this life before I met you
Here with different company
But the only face I'm seeing is yours before me

So get outta my head I'm sayin'
Get outta my brain
All this in vain when in my heart you still remain

I think it's only natural that no one is as beautiful
When you were never mine, and I was never yours
Sorry that it's awkward, I'm always running backwards
To the times we had when you meant something more

Something more... wish I was something more...
