Tears bow before the living King
Lips form the words our hearts long to know
Truth that transforms us all
Change the desires of these darkened souls

As we cast a final glance at this trodden past
It disappears from Your sight once and for all
Like photographic images brought to the light
They fade... and fade away

So be our eyes
Be our hands
Lifted to You
To You alone

Take hold of stubborn guilt we bring to You
Melodies our voices yearn to sing
Passion of youth come invade me now
Joy let your strength break through

As we come out from behind these walls of sorrow
Covered by a grace so bold
And everything we know shall pass but your love
Remains... it still remains

More breath-taking than a gaze at perfect scenery
Your silence hushes thundering storms
All this might and glory yet you still choose to dwell
In me... in me
