Here the memory does not have beginning
or end.

On every Evil there is Good, in every Good - some Evil.

In the coldness I feel warmth, and in the warmth - coldness.

In the darkness I see light, and in the light - darkness.

In the roar of the sea waves, breaking on the shore,
I hear music that exists since time so distant.

Who has composed the endless song of the waves?

The religion shouts: 'God and no one else!'

In the fallacy there is no Enlightenment, in the enlightenment - no fallacy.

In the lie there is no truth, in the truth - no lie.

And the truth is that composer of the endless song of the waves are the stars, the planets that go round then
and the moon, which conducts the choir of seas and oceans on the planet Earth.

Here the memory does not have beginning
or end.
