Grey, pale essence is falling to pieces in front of my eyes
 The majestic trees uncovering their bodies
 Stretching hands towards the merciless sky of dark

 /There in the dark are flying black crows
 Performing heady funeral ritual/

Spells uproar deadly silence
 Wind is dancing alone in the tangle of woods
 Withered flowers whisper my name, whisper my name...

 /Praying for life, moaning but they don't know
 How beautiful they are in these black garments/

The Sun has just gone down the silent calm lake
 And the Dark called for the mournful Moon
 My heart is bound in melancholy forever lost in the wood
 Within the deserted gloomy soul of Fall
