Here's the words I never spoke, a substitute for all that's worth never thought That it would turn out all that wrong but...
Summer came upon our hearts filled me up and took me home Seconds filled with madness turned into a day or two

The things I knew most, the things I do best
It was the same that was taken from me
It's not a promise if you take it all away

Trying to let it go, time to make up for all that's lost
I'm seeing it differently, I see it in me

Washing off the ink and dust, masking all that scent we shared, bleeding slowly Ends where words turn into sentences.

All that I knew, all that I did Came to be meaningless in their own way Am I the same now that I have walked away?

Trying to let it go, time to make up for all that's lost
I'm seeing it differently I see it in me
Ascending the life I know starting I know Starting it over hands untied I see it's a different me, I see it in me.

I am stronger than I ever was, I can hardly explain, and nothing can take this away
But I still can't shake those words you said

That day a cloud's above me now a night's about to hide a cloud's above me now,
I try to hide

Trying to let it go, time to make up for all that's lost
I'm seeing it differently I see it in me
Ascending the life I know starting I know Starting it over hands untied I see it's a different me, I see it in me.

Time to let it go, a cloud's above me now
Time to let it go, I see it in me
