(Jud J. Friedman / Allan Rich / Sheila E.)

If I, should say, I'm gonna let myself go all the way, fot you, this time, and let you in my life.
If I, should start, to unlock these chains I've put around my heart,
and give myself to you, body, mind and soul.

It's hard for me to do, but I'm willing to,
if you promise me,
promise me, promise me, ooh.

Thou shalt not lie, thou shalt not make me cry, I need to
know,
thou shalt love only me, for eternity, promise me.
Love can move mountains, love can part the see,
but it can steal everything we've got, so thou shalt not.

I've been in love before, and I still have the wounds, the scars,
from those who swore, they'd never let me down.

I'll give you my all, I'd break down every wall,

if you promise me (promise me), promise me, promise me baby.

Thou shalt not lie, thou shalt not make me cry, I need to
know,
thou shalt love only me, for eternity, promise me.
Love can move mountains (mountains), love can part
the see,
but it can steal everything we've got, so thou shalt not.

[solo]

I'll give you my all, I'd break down every wall,
if you promise me (promise me), you've got to promise me, promise me baby.

Thou shalt not lie, thou shalt not make me cry, I need to
know,

thou shalt love only me, for eternity, promise me.
Love can move mountains (mountains), love can part
the sea,
but it can steal everything we've got, so thou shalt not.

Thou shalt not.
