Once I was fleeing the city trying to cross the fields
Cracking electrical storms chasing at my heels
Soon I was burning a fever like never before
I felt so alone but then I came to a door
It was the house of a doctor so I stepped inside

Doctor doctor they say you're a miracle man
The man with the miracle plan

Old guy was checking me out with his sapphire eyes
He said 'Sit down by the fire kid, just try to realise
You see, some times some things just don't happen they're all meant to be Like going into that storm so you could run into me Everybody needs a little help sometimes to seal the deal'

He said 'I ain't no preacher dealing lies
No cheater, no reaper in disguise.
Those are the agents of darkness and endless night (yeah).

'So tell me your name and I'll slip through that door
Back to that place that you heard of before
So hold on hold on there ain't no one quick fix' said

Doctor doctor they say you're a miracle man
The man with the miracle plan

For folk need love
But folk seek pain
There's nowt so strange as folk they say
There's nowt so strange as folk they say
