She asked if I had any secrets
Any words I rarely shared
Any problems or conditions
Any dust beneath the stairs

I rattled off a list of demons
Of broken glass beneath my skin
But soon my great flaw was rising
Around the time the air grew thin

Cause I'm no good at saying goodbye
My palms start to sweat and my throat feels dry
I'm no good at saying goodbye
So won't you leave before I open my eyes

The day was filled with bright adventures
The night was soaked in red romance
But in the morning I felt helpless
Like a boxer in a trance

She laughed as if it was so simple
And wrapped her arms around my chest
My heart was ready to enjoy this
But my brain was worried about the end

Cause I'm no good at saying goodbye
My palms start to sweat and my throat feels dry
I'm no good at saying goodbye
So won't you leave before I open my eyes

I always start to studder when the time runs down
I'm racing with the end of the day
I know she knows I know I love her still some how
I dont know what to say,
Dont know what to say,
Dont know what to say

Cause I'm no good at saying goodbye
My palms start to sweat and my throat feels dry
I'm no good at saying goodbye
So won't you leave before I open my eyes

Won't you leave before I open my eyes
