

Charlie Louvin

"Let's Help Each Other To Forget"

Visit "Let's Help Each Other To Forget" on MotoLyrics.com

Let's Help Each Other To Forget (Charlie Louvin & Melba Montgomery)

She left behind a strand of hair and some curlers that she wore
And a half used jar of cold cream and some lipstick in a drawer

At times I find a bobby-pin scattered here and there
Just a trace of her perfume lingers every where

He left behind a worn out shirt with a button off the sleeve
And a crumpled faded photograph that he once made with me
He left a few old razor blades and a broken pocket comb
And a closet filled with emptiness reminds me that he's gone

Our common bond of loneliness
Forces us together
Let's help each other to forget
And then forget each other

I need someone to be around and help me at this time
To chase away ol' memories and get them off my mind

Just like you I'm lonely too and I can understand
So let's pretend and try to find what happiness we can

Our common bond of loneliness
Forces us together
Let's help each other to forget
And then forget each other

Visit Charlie Louvin page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.