I wake up early
I walk around all day surrounded by people who are surrounded by hate misunderstanding everything they're shown there's a fire burning but it won't keep me warm

I looked in the night club and I looked in the street searching for someone who was searching like me I slipped in to the Sanctuary
I stood in the back
I said there's only one question
I was looking to ask

Where are you?
I'm in my broken dream is it true? they just will not believe there's no proof this is the way it should be somebody's watching over this broken dream

they say all that glitters has it's price in this world of greet, betrayal and lies and the grinning false idols with the glowing red eyes they have burned down the mission but the faith never died
