Some tales say morrow knows
I know not why they say so
Some go where sorrow goes
I know not where they do go

One comes with winter's wind
To tell a tale of mourning
One free as summer's sin
To tell a tale of mourning

Spinning around in circles everyday
Spinning around and finding no new way
Spinning around, spinning around they say
I wish them all dead anyway

So sing the poets then
I know now why they sing so
So go they sorrow's friends
I know now where they do go

One comes with autumn's rain
And sing the song of mourning
One sets the spring aflame
And sing the song of mourning
