They say your life is like a a yellow brick road
That's nice, mine's like a maze
Is there some secret handshake, I do not know
'Cause I stop and ask for help, people tell me different ways

Sometimes they're right
And sometimes they're wrong to me
Well, it's like a game
They're in a best of three

'Cause trickery's always triggering sirens
In my head, in my head
And trickery's trying to cover my eyes
And cloud my head, cloud my head

I'm like a homeless man caught in a storm
With no point to run for cover
As I stay motionless under the grave
This takes to all the miserable army if it shakes my brain

Sometimes they're right
Sometimes they're wrong to me
They're comin' fast
They're only picking up speed

'Cause trickery's always triggering sirens
In my head, in my head
Yeah, trickery's trying to cover my eyes
And cloud my head, cloud my head

I wish I could discern the things I cannot see
Or am I too concerned with finding clarity
And all these questions are killing me
And everyone tells me different things

Sometimes they're right
And sometimes they're wrong to me
They're comin' fast
They'll be here before true love

Trickery's always triggering sirens
In my head, in my head
Yeah, trickery's trying to cover my eyes
And cloud my head, cloud my head

Trickery's always triggering sirens
And trickery's trying to cover my eyes
Yeah, trickery's always messing with my head
