"The Anatomy Of A Symphony"

My silhouette rises and falls
Like waves upon your shore.
Any regrets fall into pieces
Like the clothes upon this floor.

And I pour myself out
Like honey from a spoon,
And I'm shaking
While chasing after you.

And the room loses focus,
But the moment is flawless,
Over and over again.

Her lips come together
And shatter with pleasure,
Over and over again.

I lie awake within her symphony;
Her heart is beating two-four,
Her breathing croons in D.

She moves and still I follow,
Fitting perfect, filling hollows,
Yeah...

And the room loses focus,
But the moment is flawless,
Over and over again.

Her lips come together
And shatter with pleasure,
Yeah...

Over and over again...

And the room loses focus,
But the moment is flawless,
Over and over again.

Her lips come together

And shatter with pleasure,
Over and over again.
