Love is just a game that everybody plays
And when the game is over not everybody pays Some play the game to lose, some play the game to win
The winners walk out laughing, the losers cry, deal
again

Lately you and I have played the game
Now there's no feeling left except for the pain
Finally comes the time to fall apart
And I fine that I am in way over my heart

Oh you've been holding on to holding on
But we can't leave not well enough alone any longer
We're not making love, we're keeping score
It's a simple matter, it don't matter anymore

'Cause love is just a game that everybody plays
And when the game is over not everybody pays
Some play the game to lose some play the game to win
The winners walk out laughing, the losers cry, deal
again

Deal again
Deal again
Deal again
Deal again
