Down In the gutter of broken hearts
I lie in 8 months time died the love of my life Wounds cut so deep: Will I ever forget that you crept away like a thief in the night
And I'm standing on top of a mountain Crying bereavement to the stars
Will I make my way without you?
Will I ever get over you?
Oh, this room It seems so strange now
'cause your laughter still echoes inside
Withered roses will never bloom again
Carry my weight: Those memories of you!
Once t felt that you loved me
These days are over, now we're through Our secret garden lost forever
I never thought you could be that cruel
In cold blood you walked away!
Take me down to the sea
Take me to my last resort d'Amour
Take me down to the sea
Down there my lover's waiting
She has come for our last rendez-vous
Singing, dancing, dreaming
Drowning in the waves of tears that never dry Drowning in the waves of love that never dies
I saw a shadow on the shadow of her smile
Dream-like strains wake me up at night
The memory of her presence faded long ago like a vanished trail of smoke
I try In vain to recollect the time of a love that we once shared Fragments of her voice come haunting me at nigh
How I wished I could turn back time Her name once written down In my diary now frozen between the lines Gone like last winter's frostwork on the window - Will I ever understand?
Still there's a shadow on the shadow of her smile
Gates of time can never be crossed twice
The frostwork of our love melted all away but when we die our songs remain!

And comes the winter of our lives we're trying to keep us warm with the ashes of our fading memories
Once frostwork's fallen on the ground
You can never bring
