Breathe, tell me,
That your lungs are in working order because this gets so much harder,
Try to find, A breaf inside tonight
Because it's the perfect time to open your eyes tonight,

And its last call in the hospital,
And we sleep alone,

But the air is hiding some place else,
And oh it was stolen moments ago,
Your lungs are too slow, your lungs are too slow,
But the oxygen apparatus gives us purpose to push words,

From our lungs,
This town, the sea,
Promised with a liars tounge,

Because I know the news it's in your voice and it's in
this room,
And i can taste the air when your footsteps hit the stairs,
This bed needs to be undressed im breathing by myself tonight,
Im the closest to invincible, Im the closest to invincible

That I've ever been, that I've ever been But on reflection,

I'd rather wake up on fire,
I'd rather wake up on fire,
Keep the streetlights down we feel everything in the dark,
Cover up your mouth and oh god hide your eyes,
Realise that your a breaf to late to talk to him this time,
And all the joint hands won't save you this time,

Come back through the door,
Run, Walk, Crawl

Because I know the news it's in your voice and it's in

this room,
And i can taste the air when your footsteps hit the
stairs,
This bed needs to be undressed im breathing by
myself tonight,
Im the closest to invincible, Im the closest to invincible

Im the closest to invincible, Im the closest to invincible,
Don't end your life like this, Walk towards the light

Because I know the news it's in your voice and it's in
this room,
And i can taste the air,
This bed needs to be redressed, my chest needs all the help it can get,
I'm not so invincible, im not so invincible,

But I swear,
We won't burn first
