What's going on, cause there's something very wrong
And I can't seem to understand my problems now Do I see through you, Or has a clouded point of view become the basis on which I have learned to speculate

And though I know that I have struggled in this understanding
I've come to learn that I can't live this on my own

When it's said and done,
Will I've lost or will I've won in this battle that I can't stop fighting now
Cause I'm falling down, But as it crumbles all around I think I realize that my hope is just a prayer away

Just the other day I saw so clearly that, one life can leave it's mark
And so I'm wondering, if I would die today, would I have done my part
