When To Let It Go
If I didn't love you
I would invite myself over
I would invite myself over if I didn't know you
Then I wouldn't say that I love you and I'd see a whole lot more of you
If I didn't know you
I'd run you out for good
Just to see if I could
You'd be knocking down my door
You'd be lobbying for more

Who's the one who needs it most is who will run forever
I've been around enough to know when to let it go

If I didn't reach you
You would be wielding your wares
Yeah you wouldn't be so damn scared if I didn't see you
Through all your battered charades
The mask was transparent to me
I could see you
You got an autopilot role
The Trojan Marionette
From all the hearts you stole
Where does tragedy go next?

Who's the one who needs it most is who will run forever
I've been around enough to know when to let it go

Now and then I think of you
Empty and alone
How to pay this deficit
With my rubles and stones?

Who's the one who needs it most is who will run forever
I've been around enough to know when to let it go
If I didn't love you...
