Took a bus to meet me in a bar in a Tuscan hill Oh a sight I'd never seen, I believe in God still But you wouldn't be able to stop me if I feel like running away
Wouldn't be able to stop me if I didn't want to stay

And the rain fell on the houses
And the rain fell on the trees
It fell its fiercest on the skulls of the willingly deceived They put money in their hearts and God where their mouth is "â€"
They put money in their hearts and God

Said he'd been sleeping lonely, spending nights under the stars
Little darling, we're all lonely, we don't all show our scars
It's my heart, and my burden, and I would never bring you down like that My heart, my burden, I would never bring you down with me

And the rain fell on the towers and on the late swaying trees
And it hammered and it raged on us unwillingly And the believers were forewarned, and they ran into the storm
And watched the earth's light flicker and fail
They watched the earth's light flicker and fail Flicker and flicker and fail

They put money in their hearts and God where their mouth is
"â€"They put money in their hearts and God where their mouth is
They put money in their hearts and God where their
mouth is
They put money in their hearts and God
