There she goes once again
The ghost of our love is making me shiver
It's only small drops of pain
But even the rain can turn into rivers

Thought I'd be safe
Livin' behind this wall
But the pressure's too much
And it's starting to fall

So how do I get over you?
How do I survive
Living half a life that I knew?

Oh, how do I get over you
When you take away everything I had to be true
I wonder if you feel it too, do you?

Everywhere that I turn
There's somethin' there, something to remind me
When I sleep it's alone
Still I reach out as if you're beside me

Try to move on
I try to find somethin' new
But everything that I did
Something we used to do

So how do I get over you?
How do I survive
Livin' half a life that I knew?

Oh, how do I get over you
When you take away everything I had to be true
I wonder if you feel it too, do you?

Seems like every place
Every place that we knew
Every sign, every taste
Reminds me of you

I thought that this would be gone

It's still so strong
I keep holdin' on
What else can I do?

So how do I get over you?
How do I survive
Livin' half a life that I knew?

Oh how do I get over you
When you take away everything I had to be true
I wonder if you feel it too, do you?
Baby, do you?
