[Words: Barthold, music: Barthold, Wiklund]

As I drift away through the bluish light
Your velvet touch it fondles me as I step inside
My universal sleep, once again it's calling me
I wait for the proper moment to venture into the dream

Drink from this fountain, built from a heart of stone
The waters pouring through it are the dreams
I walk along Drink from this fountain, built from a heart of stone
Lucid dream desire

Here I'm just a fragment of things that used to be What is true might not be real when you step into my dream
I'm one without name among stars in your sky
I am just a fragment of things that never came to life

I dream forever more And my dreams shall forever be
Drink from this fountain, built from a heart of stone

The waters pouring through it are the dreams I walk along
Lucid dream desire
