empty feeling in a crowded room he knew that he shouldn't have come today best intentions get misunderstood he just wanted to see her face again thinks it might just be the last time everyday his courage slips a little more he knows soon it's gonna have to end since she's gone and seen the one before he'd been living in a memory till now never wanted to face it until now couldn't even say the name until now cut his wrist and let the blood spill out couldn't face it till now shook her father's hand good bye kissed her mother on the face she started to cry hate so strong it always showed no one said it but he'd always know blue flowers on her mattress are all that he sees now a broken picture of her face that just won't fade it's finally gonna fade now cause he'd been living in a memory till now

never wanted to face it till now it never faded till now
