words are running out again words are pouring down your face like tears and every little thing that you feel is running down from your wicked little mouth again pain that you feel comes from the way that you've been living easy
and every little thing that you feel comes running down

wicked little mouth again here it comes again and the words are running down here they come again

words are pouring down your face like tears
