Airport torture. Patience! Wait! The tannoy shouts you've just arrived and fingers tap and eyes are strained - they wander through the queue for recognition. Soon we'll be together - sharing secrets. Share a scarf..... and share a little heaven.
Again. ...
Kisses over breakfast. Touching souls and swapping wishes.
The coffee's cold - you washed the dishes - shared a cigarette and time to go. We took the train - still clutching.
We smiled as others looked away....then looked again...
Hands across the table - tasting tears and linking fingers. Case is packed but we'll still linger `til our time is up. Soon we'll just be swapping letters, crying down the telephone. We'll wish away the seconds `til the story starts again.....
