I tell myself that I'm strong enough
I can make it through on your partial truth
Anything to keep me around
I hate it when you make me smile
'Cause it's just nothing but a temporary high for now
It's obvious you bring me down

And just for a moment I fall for your touch
You love me, I get it, but love's not enough

It's almost perfect
But under the surface
I know that it's wrong to go on
With such a sweet illusion
Because your lies are the truth I just can't get used to
'Cause your lies are the truth that I just can't get used

I've pulled a string from the tapestry
And I can't believe it's unraveling
Still I try to put it back up
All I need is you to lie to me
And make me see what I want to see
I play along, I just can't give up

So don't tell me you're sorry it won't work anymore
Don't sell me your story I've heard it before

It's almost perfect
But under the surface
I know that it's wrong to go on
With such a sweet illusion
'Cause your lies are the truth I just can't get used to
'Cause your lies are the truth that I just can't get used

You opened the door when you know I won't go
I'm trapped in denial you lied on my soul
You swear on your life I'm wrong but I know you, I know you

It's almost perfect
But under the surface I know

That it's wrong to go on
With such a sweet illusion
'Cause your lies are the truth I just can't get used to Yeah your lies are the truth that I just can't get used
