Molokov: [Spoken]

The game is greater than its players, Miss Vassy.
How true.

[Sung]

I don't know how you can allow
This harm to be done to chess,
And how this baby of yours
Can be persuaded back to the game.

Florence: [Spoken]

Easy. You stop playing politics and you start playing chess.

[Sung]

I don't know how
You have the gall to Criticize us
When it is all too
Obvious this is what you wanted,
We get the blame.

[Spoken]

Your man, following orders, was planning some sort of bust-up from the word go.

Molokov:

You really are mad,
He has no orders
Now let me put my cards
Upon your table--
If he is aggrieved,
then who can blame him?
He is up against a man
Who's less than stable.

Florence:

Who rocked his chair
Throughout the match then?
Who sniffed and coughed,
Began to scratch, then
Played with his flag
And tapped his fingers
Then took a walk?

[Spoken]

Your precious boy!

[Sung]

Listen, you plutocratic throwback,

You and your cronies wanna go back

Home to your Dachas, not the salt mines?

[Spoken]

We better talk!

Molokov: [Spoken]

I wish, Florienz--

Florence: [Spoken]

Florence!

Molokov: [Spoken]

Florence, you would refrain from cheap political jibe at a time when cooperation between us is vital.

Besides, I would have thought you'd be reluctant to criticize fellow Eastern European.

Florence: [Spoken]

Fellow Eastern Europeans! I was born a Hungarian.

Do you remember Hungary? I wish I could. I was only five when you bastards moved in. I have no memory of my homeland-- my mother, my father, my people-- all taken from me by you!

[Sung]

And you call yourself

A fellow Eastern European!

Molokov:

Come now, Miss Vassy,

We're digressing

Back to the point,

Let's start addressing

All our attention

To the World Chess

Championship.

Florence: [Spoken]

Cut the crap! They have to meet. If you deliver Anatoly,
I will deliver Freddie, at the Merano Mountain Inn, famous for its peace and tranquility. That's where I'll do the business.

Molokov: [Spoken]

We'll do the business.

Florence: [Spoken]

I'll do the business.
