My lungs are aching
From the cold from being outside.
And the windows in my car
Have started to fog up.
And it's colder then I remember it ever being in Florida.

My stomach's burning
And the stereo in this car is screaming so loud.
It's 3 AM
I'm starting to wake up.
And it's darker then I remember it ever being in Florida.

The saddest song always plays
On the radio on the coldest days,
Just when I'm saying goodbye in gasoline.
'cause It's the only way I know. It's the only way I know.

My head in spinning
And the engine is purring and clicking in time.
To the pounding in my head
And this heart on my sleeve
And it's quieter then I remember.
And it can go on forever.

The saddest song always plays
On the radio on the coldest days,
Just when I'm saying goodbye in gasoline.

'cause It's the only way I know. It's the only way I know.

Do you know how many times
How many times I've counted the signs of State lines and roads I've known.
I know, this time, feels like goodbye.

My lungs are aching
From the cold from standing outside.
After all this time I'm still fucked up.
And its colder then I ever remember it ever being in Florida

The saddest song alwasly plays

On the radio on the coldest days,
Yea the saddest song always plays on the radio I know
Just when I'm saying good bye in gasoline

Saying good bye in gasoline
Saying good bye in gasoline
'cause its the only way I know
Its the only way I know!
