Falling asleep with your head on my chest
As I make a silent wish
That tonight wont end
It will last forever
And that it really exists
Because as you lift your head
With a tired smile
This feels like a dream
And if it is please don't wake me up
I'm content with being asleep

So cross my fingers
As you hold my heart
And trust that you won't tear it apart
Please don't prove me wrong
And I'll promise you a million things
And we'll come up with such childish schemes
Because this is our song

Nodding off on the car ride home
And my shoulder serves the purpose
As a place to rest your weary head
Before we make a silent kiss
Take my breath and hold it tight
And I'll try this fixation tonight
Because I'm lost for words to say
I'm not too young to know this is love
But if it's up to me I swear it was
Because this is our song

[[Instrumental break]]

So cross my fingers as you hold my heart
And trust that you won't tear it apart
Please don't prove me wrong
And I'll promise you a million things

And well come up with such childish schemes
Because this is our song
Yeah this is our song.
