

Let It Flow "Frail Wings"

The light's weaker, you follow
As I breath colder, so you fall

A butterfly on the winter's breath
Wings cold as a stone
With a blaze inside the chest
Searing all the snow

In my mouth, the coldest words
Wings now unfurl
In my hands, a barren seed
You drown in the swirl

The light gets weaker
You steadily follow
As I breath colder
So you start to fall

A butterfly on the spider's web
Wings flutter about
With a gale, falling from grace
Breaking all the bonds

The light gets weaker
You steadily follow
As I breath colder
So you start to fall
(So I start to fall)

The will is broken
You steadily struggle
Tears I would've given
To you are now over
