Yes, I know that my time is wasting.
But each day I'm still holding on.
And you said your all alone now.
We're three strong, so weather the storm.
If you think the world comes down tomorrow, well I can't just hold it in.
If you think the sky and water's merging, then suck it in.
I've been strong out in the freezing and shelter the young against the wrong.

Still you see no one you can lean on.
We're all here and here you belong.
If you think the world comes down tomorrow, well I can't just hold it in.
If you think the sky and water's merging, then suck it in.
But I can't decide the morning's making, and I won't quit until I know I've won.
