Ready, set fire, fire

One day we won the war, I thought my life would change

Without any fight the few first days were so strange

Maybe I thought I could be an happy being

But noboby can go forward without fighting

The war domain

Every day my whole life was another war

Every day of every life is another war

When you're a soldier you know who you must fight

When you're not, anyone can stab you in the night

The war domain.
