

Liar Of Golgotha

"Sick, Or Determined"

Visit "Sick, Or Determined" on MotoLyrics.com

There's no where to balance between sick &
determined
The verdict will be determined by if you keep returning Even if you're saying "No," atleast you'll let me keep learning
Someday I will figure you out
If it takes all of my years I will figure you out someday

Your password on the rubik's cube, encrypted in braille
And all it takes is common sense to see your ongoing fail
And I'll fail, and I'll fail, you're a complicated women
But someday I will figure you out
If it takes all of my years I will figure you out someday

And part of what it means to be a man is to believe in something grander than his hands can hold And faith And love are evidence of something more than circumstance of work beneath the skin and bones The logical, the monotone, I can't explain but still I know someday I will figure you out

There's no where to balance between sick &
determined
The verdict will be determined by if you keep returning
Even if you're saying "No," atleast I'm still learning
Someday I will figure you out
If it takes all of my years I will figure you out someday

Visit Liar Of Golgotha page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.