here she comes again my old friend emptiness faithfully by my side no dividing us its funny how she comes around like clockwork
when i hit the ground i try to concentrate and stretch a smile across my face you are the one to set the sun and then your coldness lingers on grab the clouds from out of sight turn our morning into night you're the cold flowing through my veins that turns my laughter to a scream and everytime we think it's done you're right behind us listening on
