Last saturday night the gang was hangin out only two dollars to our name thin black tie and polished shoooes we were out playin the game jeff pointed out the lass in the dress said "she was the one to be had" all the guys were talkin about her said, "man she looked bad in plaid" rude girl, met her at dance hall party dancing, swinging round everybody rude girl, watching her steal the show walked up, said hello, asked her to dance and she said, "let's go" she hopped it up and she stepped it down must've been the best rude girl in town the band was hot but she kept her cool made the other dancers look like fools joe and luke were talkin jive in the back the horns were doing their thing but jay was doing double takes and watching that rude girl swing one o'clock came and the dance was done the band was ready to hit the town i searched round and round the club but rude girl was nowhere to be found rude girl, haven't seen her since the dance last week i began wondering, what's the future for her and me rude girls, a pack of them walking by at a glance, a new one caught my eye
