Like father like son, like mother like daughter.
What is sown by the one. will grown by the other.
What we are when we're old. Is what we learn when we're young.
You may wander from the fold. Like father like son.

Now I knew a man when I was a child
He was so calm, and I was so wild
But I always wished, I could be that way
But now I find that, I'm growing a little calmer everyday

Like father like son, like mother like daughter.
What is sown by the one. will grown by the other.
What we are when we're old. Is what we learn when
we're young.
You may wander from the fold. Like father like son.

Now I'm a man, and I know a child.
And I try to understand, when he runs a little wild.
But I hope and I pray, that when he looks at me.
He sees a man like he would someday want to be.

Like father like son, like mother like daughter.
What is sown by the one. will grown by the other.
What we are when we're old. Is what we learn when
we're young.
You may wander from the fold. Like father like son.

You may wander from the fold, like father like son
