

Lions And Tigers And Bears "Car Window"

The car was packed and we were ready to go
The possibilities endless as the open road
The drive was long and pushed into the night
It didn't seem so bad cause everything was perfectly alright
A thousand miles from home
Our minds were even further Car window shattered
It didn't even matter at all, matter at all
Blue skies stretched into endless sea
Everyday we rolled through lights so green
Our humble basement suite in disarray
The car towed away because we didn't pay
I woke up at 6am excited
When it finally started the crowd ignited
The final night we spent sitting in the park
We sat there reminiscing long past dark
Sometimes it's the little things that make you think about life and make you wonder what it means
Sometimes it's the little things that make you think
about life and make you wonder what it means Does it even matter at all?
