Trapped inside the walls of your own head
Contemplating every little thing you've never said
There goes another day more time you threw away
I bet its getting old just wishing you were bold
Keep on dreaming of the things you'll never do
Sit back waiting for them all to come true
In the meantime just pretend you're truly happy
Hide behind your fake indifference
In the in the end its only your existence
There goes another year what is it that you fear
If you don't look around theres nothing to be found
