

Lisa Mitchell

"Heroine"

Visit "Heroine" on MotoLyrics.com

Coffee, Coffee, you're my heroine,
You open my eyes better than anyone,
When I've done all the things that I want to do,
Make sure I'm buried next to somebody I'd like to talk
to,
Oh, she lives again.

Well, Esmeralda, you're my heroine,
The way she dances, cooler than anyone,
When I've done all the things that I want to do,
Make sure I'm buried next to somebody that likes to argue,
Oh, she lives again.

Edith Piaf, now she's my heroine,
A bolder sparrow there has never been,
When I've done all the things that I want to do,
Make sure I'm buried next to somebody I'd like to talk
to,
Oh, she lives again.

Hey Charlie, O' Charlie, you're my heroine,
Technically a he, but he is quite feminine,
When I've done all the things that I want to do,
Make sure I'm buried next to somebody that likes to argue,
Oh, she lives again.

And Little Red Rider, now she's my heroine,
A fiercer shade of red, I've never seen,
When I've sung all the songs that I want to sing,
Make sure you hold onto the lady with the blue ring,
Oh, she lives again.

First sign of spring, oh, you're my heroine,
You left my high, higher than anyone,
So when I've sung all the songs that I want to sing,

Oh, she lives again.

