Light pours in a quarter to ten
The kitchen Stands where a stage should have been A life that passed long ago and dreams she had
Were once upon a time
He wakes up to face the day
And still feels poison in his veins
He's family's gone without a trace
And all that's left is once upon a time
I'm scared each day when I wake to face a, another day when my dreams just seem to
Fade away just like theirs did so long ago
God please give me the strength to believe
Now he's gone, She breathes once more
Her fear within is laid to rest
His hand can't hurt her soul again
And all the were, were once upon a time
I'm scared each day when
I wake to face a, another day when my dreams just
seem to
Fade away just like theirs did so long ago
God please give me the strength to believe
He wakes up to face the day
Her fear within is laid to rest
A life that past long ago
And all their dreams were once upon a time
