I found hunger in the fields of plenty
I found freedom in a ball and chain
I found madness in the voice of reason
I found mercy at the hangman's gate, hey

I've held the world in the palm of my hand
And watched as it slipped through my fingers like sand
Here I am alone again

Where do I turn when all I see around me is a lie?
If I close my eyes, where will I find my heart tonight?
I know all my dreams have fallen on hard times
And I'm so cold inside, where will I find my heart tonight?

I found peace in the heat of the battle
I found treason in the eyes of a friend
I found hate in the words of a preacher
I found fortune in a beggar's hands

I close my eyes and pray for the light
To guide my way, into the night I fall
And the world is crashin' down around my soul

Why do I turn when all I see around me is a lie?
If I close my eyes, where will I find my heart tonight?
I know all my dreams have fallen on hard times
And I'm so cold inside, where will I find my heart
tonight?

I have searched a thousand years
Through the darkness and the tears
And I don't think I can take another night
Without you here

Where do I turn when all I see around me is a lie?
If I close my eyes, where will I find my heart tonight?
I know all my dreams have fallen on hard times
And I'm so cold inside, where will I find my heart
tonight?

Where will I find my heart tonight?
