I once believed those mornful songs about way love is gone
They say you simply can't forget but now I know they're wrong
Forgetting is an easy thing for since you went away
Already I've forgotten you a hundred times today
Forgetting you is no big thing I do that all the time
The hard part is remembering that you're no longer mine
But when I'd find you on my mind I just don't let you stay
Already I've forgotten you a hundred times today

Why I forgot you right away when you walked out the door
Within a few short minutes I forgot a few times more
And so it goes through everyday I do that quite a lot There's nothing to forgetting you you just don't stay forgot Forgetting you is no big tihing...
