(Feat. Brad Kane)

You showed me the world
When I was all locked up inside
You reached out your hand
And took me on a magic carpet ride
One look at your smile
And I could see the light shining everywhere
People like you don't come out of thin air

You don't understand
There is so much that you don't see
Just think, if you can
What growing up had to be like for me
Your father's a man who taught you who you are
Mine was never there
So how can you say I don't come out of thin air

There's so much I want to know
You've got the chance to learn
If it means I'd have to go
I'll be right here when you return

Our wedding can wait
(I love you)
I think it's worth is small to pay
(Maybe you're right)
And won't it be great
To have your father see our wedding day
(I've waited so long to learn the truth)
It isn't too late
And now, we can finally say

Your father was really there
There's so much that we might share
And you'll finally learn you don't come out of thin air
