You fall hard
You fall deep
Even when you're awake
You look half asleep

Do you even know what you did last summer?
Wandering around half-dumb and blind
With the girls all hanging around you

Is that no or yes?
We'll have to guess
Mysterious eyes let you see what you want
Half the time you didn't know any better
But half the time you did
Hanging around like tomorrow doesn't apply to you

Well lazy dreamer
You never want to rise
Stubborn in-betweeners
You're almost paralyzed
Makes no difference to you, the sun shining in your eyes
Or the bugs, or the twine, they're waiting for you
They don't even realize
You're still out like a light

Still late at home
Bet that's you on the phone
Like a dog you show up
And wag your tail for a bone
Half the time you didn't know any better
But half the time you did
Hanging around like tomorrow doesn't apply to you

Lazy dreamer
You never want to rise
Stubborn in-betweeners
You're almost paralyzed
Makes no difference to you, the sun shining in your eyes
Or the bugs, or the twine, they're waiting for you

They don't even realize
You're still out like a light
You're still out like a light

Food gets him off, is what the neighbors say
Lives in a room by himself
Nudge him awake and he blinks his eyes
Doesn't recognize anyone at all

Lazy dreamer
You never want to rise
Stubborn in-betweenener
You're almost paralyzed
Makes no difference to you, the sun shining in your eyes
Or the bugs, or the twine, they're waiting for you
They don't even realize
You're still out like a light
You're still out like a light
You're still out like a light
You're still out like a light
You're still out like a light
